mission from the Fresident to recross the Rappahannock, after demonstrating the importance of the movement, Hooker asked that his communication might be properly quarded in his rear. Fromises to attend to this were given, as well as a positive promise that additional means of an ammunition supplyshould be furnished, and that Sigel should again load his troops.

During Wednesday and Thursday, Gea. Hooker detailed several regiments to gather up the wounded and bury the dead on the south bank of the Rappahannock River. The number of rebels found unburied was very large. It is believed that no effort was made by the enemy to bury them. The fact that the enemy left thus suddenly confirmed Hooker was busy giving instructions to various Generals concerning the proposed pursuit and capture of Lee's army.

The question, Where have the rebels goue? Is going around unanswered. In the hotels, it is the opinion of military men that they have fallen back in two columns—one to wards Richmond, and the other towards Gordonsville, in the hope of concentrating with Long-street's forces in front of Richmond. This enext engagement will probably take place near the Upper Famunky Hver, whither Hooker is moving as rapidly as possible. Many maintain that James river will be the next line the rebels will defend. It is reported to-day that the army is in motion south, and that salt-mishing with the rear guard of the enemy has commenced.

cial to the real says in response to contradicted here.

The Rus has the following:

"The steamer John A. Warner arrived at Washington on Saturday evening, with dispatches from Hooker. The following is reported to be the substance of them: At daybreak on Friday, Hooker pushed forward two corps of his army across the Rappahannock, under Sedgwick. They gathered in the wounded left en the field in the recent battles, comprising both soldiers of the Union and rebel armies, and burised the dead. At an early hour, Hooker completed crossing the entire army, together with an ample supply of ammunition and stores to last wight days. As soon, as he was across, the whole seven corps were put in motiou, and deployed right and left, in search of the enemy, who, at the latest accounts, had not been found in force. The beauting week will probably witness the greatest condict, on the continent. Gen. Hooker does not require reinforcements. It is not believed that Heinstelman has gone to reinforce Hooker, May 11.—Richmond papers state. The destruction of large trains of government wagons at Apiett's Station, and of stores of grain at that place, are the most serious loss we have amfered from the Pederal raid. Another article says: in consequence of active operations in the field, and limited transportation, the wounded on the field and at Guines depot are suffering for food. Hence an appeal is made to the benevolent. naval forces of the United States. This is the only point that Vallandigham raises in his protest. Gen. Barnside is a waiting this decision. Mr. Vallandigham is still in enstody at the Burnett House.

On Saturday, Geo. E. Pugh made an application to Judge Leavitt, in the U. S. Circuit Court, for a writ of Asheas corpus, to bring the body of Vallandigham into court. The Judge said it was the settled practice of the court not to interfere in military arrests, and that it doubted the propriety of issuing the process where it knew it would not be regarded.

Mr. Pugh replied that Congress, in March last, pissed a law anthorising the President to suspend the writ of heboss corpus when he considered it necessary, and that the military

Mr. Pugh replied that Congress, in Marcal last, pissed a law anthorizing the President to suspend the writ of Mebeus corpus when he considered it necessary, and that the military commander having the person in custody was not compelled to produce the body in court, but it was his duty to make return of the writ, that he did have the bedy in custody, and that them all proceedings should stop.

The Judge took until Monday morning to decide on the matter. Manifestly, the writ will accomplish nothing. Pugh does not expect to get his client released, but to show that all legal means have been resorted to, to get Vallandigham out. This preceding is simply for political effect.

DETAILED REBEL ACCOUNT

THE FEDERALS REPORTED AT TALLEDEGA, ALA.

REPORTS FROM RICHMONE

Col. Sizzight took the regiments named hereinafter, went to Nashville, had a portion or all of his command mounted there on horses or mules, embarked on board steamboats and proceeded down the Cumberland, up the Tennessee, and Joined the forces under the command of Gen. Dodge, for an expedition into Alabama and Georgia. From other sources you have full details of the history of the expedition, up to the time when Courtland, in Alabama, was occupied by our troops. The capture of Tuscumbla, Alabama, sistemed the rebels very much, and it was known here two weeks ago that Forrest had gone from Spring Hill, with all his cavalry, for the purpose of stemming the tide of invasion which was rolling up the Tennessee. Some of us then had sad forebodings as to what might befull the little band which we of invasion which was rolling up the Tennesce. Some of us then had sad forebodings as to what might befull the little band which we knew had plunged unsupported and alone into the very heart of rebeldom. Yet, if Colonel Straight could succeed in destroying the bridges at Decatur, at Bridgeport, over the Coosa, and the arsenals and public buildings at Rome and Atlanta, we'all felt that we could afford the capture of him and his gallant

afford the captains band.

The Chattaneoga Rebel of May 7th is before me, and I allow it to tell the story from the time of Forrest's departure from Middle Tennessee. Its statement cridently contain the content of th many exaggerations, errors and fals but it is at present the best we have :

but it is at present the best we have:

Gen. Forrest, with his old brigade, comeisting of his own original regiment, Staris, Biddle's and Edmondson's regiments, with six pieces of artillery, 4,500 strong, ieft byring Hill on Friday, the bith of April, to go to the assistance of Col. Roddy, who was holding a large force of the enemy in check, at and beyond Courtland, Ala. The column, with Forrest at its head, moved rapidly south ward, through Glies county, to the Tennessce, and crossed at Brown's Ferry. On Tuesday, Forrest came up with Roddy at Town Greek, a small etream in an open, flat country, with stanted undergrowth, a few miles beyond Ceurtland, in the direction of Tuesumbia. Here they united forces, and attacked the enemy in force, believed to be 10,000 strong, under Gen. Dodge, with cavalry, artillery and infanty. The fight lagted several hours. The artillery firing ceased about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Occasional skirmining with small arms womed up the engagement of the day. At dark, Forrest fell back to Courtland, and threw out pickets on all the roods leading any. At dark, Forrest fell back to Courtland, and threw out pickets on all the road leading into that town.

In the meantime a force of mounted infan-ry, 2,000 strong, under Co. Straight, had gone round Courtland as if destring to get in the rear of Forrest's force. Next morning early, Forrest started in pursuit of this party.

another ngat enaued—or, rather, our boys drove them from their ambush by a vigorous charge. Indeed, it was one succession of bold and desperate charges upon ambuscade Yankees for thirty miles, until they were finally captured. Next day the Yankees were overhanded at Blanchardsville, from which they were driven forward as before, with the loss of three killed. Twelve wounded prisoverhauted at Blanchardaville, from which they were driven forward as before, with the loss of three killed. Twelve wounded prisoners and negroes were captured at Fanon and at points all along the route.

General Forrest still pursued close upon their heels, the Yankees burning bridges behind them as they fied. The bridge near Gidsen was destroyed, but the ensemy were driven from the town before they had time to destroy anything in it. Citizens could exarchly realize that the invaders were Yankees, and on seeing them for the first time, invariably took them for Confederates.

Nine miles beyond Gadsen, our men again came up with the enemy in ambush, and a fight ensued, when a Yankee Col. Hathway, a Captain, and several other officers were killed. The from works, a few miles further in the interior of Georgia, were set on fire by the Yankees, but only partially destroyed. The Yankees were finally craretaken two miles from Rome. Their advance guard, two hundred strong, had gone on towards Rome, and were checked two miles from that city, by armed citizens. Forrest dashed upon the main body, his force reduced by fatigning pursuit, to 440 men. The enemy fired one or two rounds from a little monutain howitzer, and a slight rific skirmishing constituted all the fighting at Cedar Binfis; Forrest coully summoned the enemy to surrender. Col. Straight compilled. The conditions being that the officers should retain their side-arms. The prisoners, amounting to 1,700, were marched on a mile before they were required to stack arms, ritually guarded by a force of only one-fourth their own man, faponed by a barry by one of our own men, faponed a Bayton Gap, who told Col. Straight that Forrest and a larger force in the rear. They were perhaps deceived in the rear that School and the story by one of our own men, faponed as a bayton fee, who never knew it. They supposed he had a singer force in the rear. They were perhaps deceived by a story by one of our own men, "systured at Dayton (esp, who told Col. Straight that Forrest had 5,000 men. "What brigades ?" demanded the Yankees; "his own, Armstrong's and Roddy's," promptly replied the prisoner. "Then, by Jupiter, we are lost," exclaimed the non-plaised Fankee, turning to his men. So they were, for they entrendered in half an hour. Their reception in Rome beggars description. The entire population turned out on meass to greet the hero, who entered amid warlag of hundkerchiefs, shouts of the people, and booming of samon. It was the most brilliant set of the war. Both men and leaders have won the lasting gratitude of their country. Nethaniel Bedford Forrest stands at the head of the best chieflans of the South.

The object of this incursion of Fankees, so far from their main force, saide from their intense anxiety to avoid Forrest, was to reach the Georgia State road, burn bridges, tear up rails, and play old Harry generally.

The force under Col. Straight consisted of the 3d Ohio. 18th Illicots, 51st Indians, 2d Indians, and three companies of rebeguies. Thus contains the their will be sent to Richmond, the others paroled.

Thus ends the robel account of this to-be-famous expedition. Col. Straight and men the same paper has the following:

ALABMING NAWA.—Express measengers and others from Home, Ga., last evening, report another raid into North Alabams and Georgia by Tankes, 3,500 strong. The 50th Georgia regiment returning to Bridgeport, was stopped and ordered back to Rome, mounted on captured horses and led to meet the invaders, it was believed the Yankess were at Tailadege, Ala., 30 miles south of Rome.

Capt Forrest, brother of the General, was mortally wounded in the fight near Rome. The rebols say our forces burned every grain of corn they could find between Courthand and Tuscumbia, and desiroyed all the provisions. They also burned the Military College at Lagrange. Unloss froops have evacuated Tuscrange.

Tankee and a few Confederate infantry. The enemy is reported in force man Edwards depot, four miles this side of Big Black. They captured 1,000 of our pickets.

The enemy were repulsed yesterday at Anderson's Force on the Big Black, after four hours acres farther.

But General Banks had not withdrawn to New Orleans to fortify and defend himself as the secessioniats had begun to imagine. On the contrary, he returned to break the coil that the emboldened enemy was attempting to form around his department. Leaving the Mississippi River, and leaving the gunboats to defend New Orleans from the fabulous thousands that were to descend upon it from Mobile, leakson and other strongholds on the East, Gen. No one can be found it on who can recognize her, or who recoilects of earing seen her before. Bhe is about twenty-wo years old, has black hair, very short, and clack eyes, and is well dressed.

THE NORTHWESTERN THEOLOGICAL SENT-NARY.—This institution located in our city, and under the care of the Old School Presbyand under the care of the Old School Presby-terian Church, is about to erect a handsome building for its use. Fifteen thomand dol-lars were given the past winter in the city of New York, for the purpose, and twenty-five series of land have been generously donated in the North Division for a site; Sheffield, Ogden & Co., giving twenty—and Lill & Di-very five seres. The building is to be of Drick, and prected immediately. This sent-nary seems to be in luck, as one thomsand acres of land is Iowa were recently given to

WANTED THE WORTH OF HIS MOMEY.—An Brishman named Kennedy was brought before Justice De Wolf yesterday, charged with assemble and battery by another from the Emerald Isle, named Monegan. Kennedy pland gullty, but Monegan had paid a lawyer to plead his cause, and insisted that he should do it, notwithstanding he was assured by the Justice that it was useless. He was determined that his lawyer should earn his money, and even after the whole affair was actiled, and the fine paid by Kennedy, he insisted upon having additional warrants issued, placing Kennedy under $200 bonds to keep the peace.

Departure of Phillips' Battery.

To day at twelve o'clock this uplended hatery leaves for the field. By a countermanding order, they report to Gen. Barnaide's headquarters, instead of Young's Point, La. This battery was recruited and organized in Chicago, rendeavoused at Camp Dougha, from which place they were ordered to Camp Butler, on the 22d of May, 1862, where they were mustered into the service by Capt. Watson, for three years or the war—on the 6th of June. There they received their sumament, horses and materials which complete a battery ontift. The battery was noted for its fine physical appearance and pepfection in the manual of the piece and field artiflery drill. The noble service of the brave Captain and his efficient officers and men, in the Valley of the Shenandosh, at Harper's Ferry, Bolivar Hights, Loudon and Maryland-Hights, are matters too well known in the annals of the war to need repetition. On every occasion it has rendered efficient service.

The battery arrived here on the 27th of September. It leaves here for the field with 130 effective men, 50 of which are old members, and have seen hard service. The following is a correct roster of the battery:

the exption of this paragraph. The lamented of creased was the son of Dr. John Wilson, a distinguished physician of his time, and was born at Blamford, Comm, on the 3d day of February, [78]. In his youth, he nearly completed the study of medicine, but abandomed it for the law, which profession he has adorated through a long and honorable career. During his eventful life which has passed the allotted span, he has faithfully held and administered the offices of first Judge of the Fairfield County Court, (Coun.) State Commissioner of Connecticut, Judge of the Court of Albany county, N. T., and has also been officially connected with the Bank Depariment of that State. In all these positions he was an able, scrupulonaly honest, energetic and dignified officer. In addition to the laborious driles of these every-day realities, he found time for literary pursuits, and often turned from the abstrace and cold books of the law into the region of poetry and the imagination in which equecity he made valuable contributions to the periodical literature of the country. His social life was marked by the refinements and graces of the Christian gentleman, and he has fallen asleep ripe in years, crowned with the virtues of a well spent life, leaving behind him a model for study to all who aspire to the attainments of the real objects of existence.

The deceased leaves three sons—John L. Wilson, publisher of the Evening Journal, Chas, L. Wilson, Secretary of Legation at London, and a third, a fift trader in the far Northwest; also a daughter, Mrs. James E. Bishop of this city. The body has been taken for interment to Albany, where he will rest by the side of his wife, a daughter and three sons, who have preceded him on the long unreturnable journey.

The receipts of breadstuffs at Liverpool for the week ending the 88th ult. were only 80,000 bushels of wheat and 11,000 barrels of 50ur. The total receipts since the 1st of January are 47,970 quarters of wheat, and 280,000 barrels of flour, showing a decline, as compared with the same period last year, in grain, of over two millions of bushels. The Crops in Ireland.

According to an official statement recently made by the British Chanceller of the Exchequer, the condition of Ireland has been growing rapidly and continually worse since 1859. During the three previous years there was progress, but in 1859 progress stopped. The value of the oil, wheat and potato crops, with two thirds of the live stock in the island, from 1856 to 1860, averaged 250,47,000 per annum. But in 1860-61 this—the measure of the prosperity of Ireland—full to £31,805,000, a decrease of nearly twenty-three million dollars in one year. In 1811-81 fell to £32,077,000, and in 1803-31 fell yet lower, to £77,877,000, a loss of nearly sixtly million dollars, or nearly one-third of the total value of the agricultural products.

All this is laid by the English lowers to £7.00. the total value of the agricultural products.

All this is laid by the English journals to the en-mity which exists between the Irish peasantry and the Erglish, who have bought the great estates on the island and now monopolizes the lands.
